

Shedding Light on Planet Earth

January 7, 2019—NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine confirmed over the weekend that NASA's invitation to Russian Roscosmos Director General Dmitry Rogozin to visit the United States had been cancelled, due to pressure from U.S. Senators committed to unrelenting confrontation with Russia. This decision is not just one more provocation by the U.S. "War Party," which orbits tightly around the British Empire's policy Establishment. It comes at a crucial moment of potential cooperation of four major powers—Russia, China, India and the U.S.—on the most critical of matters facing mankind: scientific cooperation on space exploration, the next great frontier of mankind's growing dominion over our universe. Efforts to thwart such needed cooperation are truly a crime against humanity.

As Wu Weiren, chief of China's lunar program stated so eloquently right after the spectacular Chang'e-4 lunar far side landing: "Exploring the unknown is human nature. The Moon is a mysterious world to us. We have a responsibility to explore and to understand it. Exploration of the Moon will also deepen our understanding of Earth and ourselves."

The pressure applied in this instance by U.S. Senators, is just one component of the British Empire's strategy to use the new U.S. Congress—including its media-magnified drive to impeach President Donald Trump; the ongoing Mueller witchhunt; and international pressure by "foreign powers" (i.e., the British), to put a straitjacket on President Trump. They are deployed to simply prevent him, by hook or by crook, from governing as President, based on the policies for which he was elected.

Also indicative of this approach are the 11th-hour efforts to sabotage Trump's Syrian withdrawal policy, since they fear its potential for totally reorganizing Southwest Asia away from decades (even centuries) of the British Empire's bloody geopolitical Great Game.

Schiller Institute founder Helga Zepp-LaRouche today counseled: Ignore the distractions. Keep the nation's attention focused on the real issues facing the world: Four Power cooperation to create a New Paradigm along the course being charted by China's Belt and Road Initiative; ending British geopolitics and its attendant wars; and defeating the onrushing trans-Atlantic financial debacle with LaRouche's Four Laws, starting with the Glass-Steagall firewall—which is also the only effective "wall" for actually stopping Dope, Inc.'s new opium war against the U.S. and others, as Lyndon LaRouche has long stated.

Man's new presence on the so-called "dark" side of the Moon, and win-win cooperation on the new era for mankind which it has opened up, can shed new light on solving these central issues back on Planet Earth.
